25% of Americans identify as having a disability.

Still, less than 3% of on-screen speaking roles depict characters with disabilities; and there are even fewer opportunities behind the camera.

The Easterseals Disability Film Challenge is a 55-hour filmmaking competition that provides filmmakers with and without disabilities the opportunity to create films and advance their career in entertainment.

Prizes for winning filmmakers include industry mentorships, production grants, Dell computers, film festival screening opportunities and more!
